

INDIVIDUAL VULNERABILITY MEASURE WITH SENSE OF ISOLATION

Takashi SHIONO, The University of York
Department of Economics and Related Studies

October 2007

ABSTRACT

This paper aims to construct the new individual vulnerability measure that takes into account the sense of relative deprivation the individual will actually feel in the realised state of the risky world. Applying the new measure to the dataset from wave 1-15 of the British Household Panel Survey, it is discovered that the correlation between the high individual vulnerability and the experience of the particular occupations.