

Innovation and Elimination of Illegal Imitation

Keishun Suzuki*

22 Apr, 2013

Abstract

This paper analyzes the effect of the elimination of illegal imitation in developing countries on the innovation in developing countries in North-South model. Unlike the previous studies, I used the elimination rate as the strength of IPR. The model shows that the policies which promote the exclusion of illegal imitation may deteriorate the innovation rate.

JEL-Classification: L16, P48, O31,

Keywords: Innovation, IPR, Imitation, North-South

*Graduate School of Economic and Management, Tohoku University, 27-1 Kawauchi Aoba-ku, Sendai, Japan (e-mail:b1ed1009@student.econ.tohoku.ac.jp)