

An Assignment Model of Markup Variation

Yuichiro Matsumoto

January 29, 2019

Abstract

This paper constructs a model where heterogeneous firms chooses products they produce according to the differences of the products. Larger firms choose to serve the highly demand elastic goods and offer lower markups. Although this result is different from previous theoretical prediction, it is compatible with recent empirical findings.